Stadium dreams, gaming crowds and overdue cake

October arrived with boarding passes, college gaming fever, livestream schedules, two very different birthdays and difficult goodbyes. If September had the team sprinting between launches, October found another gear. There were dreams fulfilled abroad, colleges transformed here and enough travel to make calendars look like flight itineraries.

For Siddharth, the standout moment had nothing to do with tech. A solo trip through Spain and Portugal brought him to Camp Nou, where he finally watched FC Barcelona play in person. A childhood dream, an iconic stadium and one of those experiences that stays with you long after the final whistle.

The celebrations back home, however, had a slight administrative delay. While Siddharth was away, his birthday cake apparently slipped right off the newsroom's collective to-do list. Even after he returned, nobody remembered. When the ceremonial chocolate fix appeared, the damage was already done.

Meanwhile, the SKOAR! College Gaming Club had no time for naps. The SCGC team pulled off 12 more college gaming events across India in October, taking the thrill of competitive play straight to students. Classrooms became multiplayer arenas, faces lit up mid-match and ordinary college days felt like esports fests. Somewhere in those enthusiastic crowds, the team responsible was almost impossible to spot. That's what happens when everybody wants in on the action. Beyond the scoreboards, it was the enthusiasm of students turning up, cheering each other and waiting for another round that made the exercise worthwhile.

Mumbai offered a quieter celebration. A tiny, rare birthday cake appeared for Vyom, and the magazine team gathered around for it. Small cake, big smiles. In Gurgaon, Aman, Amit, Manas and Yash had four separate meetings on the same Friday morning. Different appointments, same hunger. Between client sessions and briefings, they found time to converge over a meal. Good scheduling involves lunch. Four calendars, finally aligned for something important.

Yash, Aman and Siddharth also spent much of October powering through 20 consecutive days of Amazon Lives. Planning, travelling, going on camera. The trio delivered, with Siddharth logging the most sessions and his trademark Hawaiian shirt becoming something of a support cast member.

Divyanshi and Muskan bid farewell to Digit after making their marks through work, energy and everything they brought to the team. Both will be missed, and leave with our warmest wishes for what comes next.

That was October. Dreams fulfilled, games played, cakes eaten, broadcasts done and colleagues sent off with gratitude. Chaotic and unmistakably Digit.

Can't work without having lunch
