Editor's Letter

The Alfa Romeo Cuorerosso, 2+2 grand tourer concept car unveiled at the 2026 Paris Motor Show

Where innovation collides with pure imagination, luxury takes flight. A new era takes the wheel as Alfa Romeo debuts a gorgeous, boundary-pushing GT. Stealing the spotlight at the 2026 Paris Motor Show, the Cuorerosso is a moving sculpture that epitomises a masterclass in Italian design and scripts the brand's aesthetic future. While this new generation of concept performance cars may be rewriting the narrative of design, Spice captures the wider cultural shift with our year-end issue.

The Spice 100, our inaugural annual showcase of contemporary indulgence, has been meticulously designed and anchored by the collective wisdom of tastemakers and trend forecasters. This issue explores 10 pillars of luxury to satisfy the most discerning palates with a special focus on experiential luxury. For those with a natural affinity for instant gratification, the issue promises a posse of utilitarian and dazzling products. At the same time, the romancer of detail will find much to relish in our slow reads. Our features bring home quieter aspirations, much like AI's role in infusing luxury tech with intelligence and personalisation to create a smart, intuitive, and deeply personal experience. For years, 'smart' living was defined by a cluttered matrix of apps and devices. Today, luxury design cohabits with AI home orchestration, where automation has transitioned from a flashy upgrade of accumulating gadgets to an architectural imperative that focusses on effortless living.

If living better is the aspiration, longevity has become the new luxury. However, it's not adding years to your life as much as focussing on how to remain strong, lucid, mobile, and independent that holds our interest. If wellness equips us to outwit biology, travel allows us to escape geography. Follow the trail of the 'Samburu 5' in northern Kenya—the grevy's zebra, reticulated giraffe, gerenuk, beisa, and Somali ostrich. Whether it's the lemurs in Madagascar, gorillas in Rwanda or even the elusive snow leopard in Ladakh, Spice journeys beyond the straight and narrow.

Closer to the road, our motorcycle diaries, fuelled by the burgeoning riding community culture, celebrate adventure touring and a community that is increasingly age- and gender agnostic. Curiosity and a zest for life rather than habit drive our exploration of thriving food and drink subcultures. Turning to art, we examine the timeless question of whether size matters. The newly debuted Mercedes-Maybach S 580e might make a case for scale, but true engagement usually lies in nuance and novelty—qualities I hope you will enjoy throughout this issue.

Aroon Purie
Editor-in-Chief