MEAL WITH A VIEW

4 MEET THE BUND SKYLINE, SHANGHAI

With breathtaking views of Shanghai's North Bund, Meet the Bund Skyline is a one-Michelin star restaurant, perched on the 56th floor of Raffles City The Bund West Tower. An offshoot of the original Meet The Bund, it is led by Executive Chef Chen Zhiping. Known for elevating Fujian cuisine, one of China's eight great culinary traditions, its signature dishes showcase the region's ingredients and techniques. The tea pavilion, which offers spectacular views, provides a peaceful spot to dine in style while soaking in the skyline.
instagram.com/meetthebund_sh

FUSION FEAST

5 LING LONG SHANGHAI

A contemporary fine-dining restaurant by Chef Jason Liu, an offshoot of its Beijing counterpart, Ling Long Shanghai brings neo-Chinese cooking to Raffles City. Here, a season-driven menu is served in acts, with each course merging classical Chinese techniques with European finesse. Part of the cuisine is modern Chinese, to showcase the country's regional tastes integrated with European cooking techniques. The wine programme is guided by Yang Lu MS—the only Chinese Master Sommelier —and is designed with a running thread: the history of wine.
restaurantlinglong.com

SEASONAL SURPRISES

6 PUJOL, MEXICO CITY

Pujol, a two-Michelin star restaurant in Mexico City, is an honest effort at reinterpreting the country's flavours, techniques, and ingredients through a modern lens. Driven by Enrique Olvera's culinary genius, it prides itself with its seasonal tasting menu offering a journey through Mexico's diverse regions, presenting traditional ingredients and techniques in a contemporary perspective.
pujol.com.mx/en

