

KIRAN NADAR

8 THE ULTIMATE COLLECTOR

Everyone's buying; there are under bidders whose reasons remain hidden; but at the top of the heap and completely unbeatable, because she's building India's greatest private art museum, remains Kiran Nadar. Armed with a vision, knowledge, and great taste, when she snaps it up, you know the artist is a blue-chip in the world of art, collectability, and investment.

A mixed-media sculpture by Satish Gujral titled Seated Figure

PAST PERFECT

9 THE ARCHIVE AS ART

Letters, catalogues, notes, doodles... You have it; the collectors want it. It's often more personal, even historical, as evidenced by spates of auctions around archival material. Satish Gujral 100: World of Architecture, curated by Reha Sodhi at Gujral's Delhi home, brings together drawings, models and archival ephemera—photographs, blueprints and sketches—tracing the ideas behind his architecture.

SUMAKSHI SINGH

A suspended thread-and-wire sculpture titled Ascent by Sumakshi Singh

10 THE YOUNG ARTIST ON THE HORIZON

There are too many, and the ones who'll be on the hot list will be the ones who just showed at the Venice Biennale. My pick is Sumakshi Singh with her ephemeral thread works representing a new language. I'd like to add Kolkata artist, Chandra Bhattacharjee, whose oil portraits of the city's marginalised mark him out as a contemporary painter in the modern mould. ■