SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AFTER IT WAS SET UP TO GROOM LEADERS AND ENTREPRENEURS, the Indian Institute of Management Ahmedabad is asking what a manager is for when software can do the analysis. Director Prof. Bharat Bhasker's answer is judgement. "For us, the biggest change is a shift from teaching analysis to teaching judgement," he says. Analysis is getting cheaper, the scarce skill is deciding what to ask.

The institutional bet is the Krishnamurthy Tandon School of Artificial Intelligence, launched this year on a Rs 100 crore endowment from alumna Chandrika Tandon (Post Graduate Programme, 1975). It works where technology, management and public impact meet. In six months, its research agenda has spread to public systems and governance, healthcare and fintech.

Under it sits the BPGP (Blended Post Graduate Programme) in Business Analytics & AI, billed as India's first blended MBA of its kind, with live online sessions alongside on-campus modules so that working professionals can upskill without pausing their careers.

Partnerships are stacking up. An OpenAI collaboration targets responsible AI use in enterprise decisions and AI-informed teaching. The Mattu Centre for Research in Security Pricing and Corporate Finance, set up in July with alumnus Ravi Mattu (PGP 1979), will build
