careers expanding as luxury becomes less about the product alone and more about the experience, aspiration, and emotion attached to it.

"The number of careers is galloping and not just expanding. Luxury is emotion, experience and storytelling, and these can apply to almost any product. You can even sell something as ordinary as a pencil or a pen as a luxury product," he says.

The growing role of digital channels is adding another dimension. Elite Associates' Salary Insights 2026 points to the importance of personalised customer engagement. Building relationships with customers is no longer confined to the boutique; digital channels and customer relationship management tools can help brands maintain connect with their potential customers.

BRAND IS NOT ENOUGH

India's expanding luxury market raises a question that goes beyond job creation: Will there be enough professionals with the capabilities to fill them?

Abhay Gupta, Founder and Chairman of Luxury Connect and Luxury Connect Business School, says the institute earlier assessed that India could need 5.6 million skilled luxury professionals. The figure

The [talent] gap goes beyond knowing the products or being able to describe a brand. The gap is not product knowledge; it is judgement"

ABHAY GUPTA

FOUNDER & CHAIRMAN, LUXURY CONNECT AND LUXURY CONNECT BUSINESS SCHOOL

Where Are the Next Big Careers?

From a talent perspective, opportunities span five interconnected areas:

Retail, client development

CLIENT ADVISORS, PRIVATE CLIENT SPECIALISTS, RETAIL OPERATIONS MANAGERS, VISUAL MERCHANDISING PROFESSIONALS

Hospitality and travel

GUEST EXPERIENCE, CONCIERGE SERVICES, REVENUE MANAGEMENT, FOOD AND BEVERAGE, BESPOKE TRAVEL EXPERIENCES

