The Passion to Build, the Discipline to Grow - Today Group celebrates 20 years of building Navi Mumbai

From humble beginnings as a residential developer to an impressive portfolio spanning homes and commercial destinations, Today Group's journey has unfolded alongside Navi Mumbai's rise. Its projects have helped shape the city's residential and commercial landscape. In turn, Navi Mumbai's growth has opened new opportunities for the Group. Managing Director Bhadresh Shah and Joint Managing Director Bhavesh Shah discuss building the business together, the projects that reflect the city's changing ambitions, and why their 20-year story is now reaching audiences in London and New York.

You built Today Group together from the ground up. What did you see in Navi Mumbai when you began, and what gave you the confidence to invest your future here?

Our journey began in 2005 with land available for development. It was possibility of a city where families could put down roots and build a life that got us started. We saw the prospect of doing things with greater space, better planning and a stronger sense of community. Back then, Navi Mumbai had enormous potential, but potential alone does not earn a homebuyer's trust. And so, we saw ourselves as developers who would understand people's aspirations and deliver on their promises. My brother and I began with that conviction. We did not have a long list of completed projects behind us. All we had was a vision, and the willingness to work closely on every aspect of the business. We had a commitment to build homes we could stand by. Those early decisions actually helped give shape to Today Group. In time, as Navi Mumbai grew, we grew with it, project by project and relationship by relationship.

In the early years, Navi Mumbai was often discussed in terms of what it might become. How did you see that potential turn into a thriving city, and how did Today Group grow alongside it?

The two journeys are deeply connected. Navi Mumbai was previously discussed in terms of what it might become. Nerul, Airoli, Juinagar, Kharghar and Panvel today have their own character and appeal. They are being chosen by families for their homes, connections and everyday conveniences. There is also growing interest among businesses that are also looking at the region. For us that has lent shape to our work. Over two decades, Today Group has delivered over 30 projects. Over 3,000 families got homes. As the city matured, expectations also rose. Buyers sought more thoughtful layouts, better amenities and developments that would remain relevant as their neighbourhoods evolved. We responded by expanding our capabilities and our presence across Navi Mumbai. We delivered projects that in addition to meeting buyer needs helped establish Navi Mumbai into what it sought to become. We take pride in having contributed to its real estate growth, just as the city's progress has given us the opportunity to become the organisation we are today.

Today Group has delivered more than 30 projects. Which decisions have been most important in earning the trust needed to grow at that scale?

Navi Mumbai is not one uniform market and no single project of ours can tell the whole story. What a family seeks in Nerul may differ from what a buyer is looking for in Kharghar or Panvel. Our residential portfolio reflects that range. Nova Vista in Nerul, Elara, also known as Codename Cloud City, in Kharghar, Codename Eden Garden in Airoli and Codename Elements in Panvel each respond to a distinct location and set of customer aspirations. With Codename Citadel in Juinagar, we are bringing MMR's first exclusive duplex tower to the market, offering a distinctive ultra-luxury residential experience with a first-of-its-kind dedicated high-rise of 4 BHK duplex homes. Today Group has projects across Affordable, Mid-Market and Luxury homes.
