Notes on the Contributors

Mallikarjun Kharge is the chairperson of the Indian National Developmental Inclusive Alliance (INDIA), the president of the Indian National Congress and the leader of the Opposition (Rajya Sabha) since December 2022. Earlier, he served as the leader of the Congress party (Lok Sabha) and union minister for railways, labour and employment. He has also held a host of portfolios in the government of Karnataka. Beginning as the president of the Kalaburagi Town Congress Committee in 1969, he has won a record ten consecutive elections.

Manish Khandur was the director of CNN, USA, and later the head of news partnerships for Facebook India. A Kellogg School of Management MBA graduate, he was the Congress's candidate from Garhwal, Uttarakhand, for the 2019 Lok Sabha election and has worked with the party in various capacities. He was the official diarist of the Bharat Jodo Yatra.

Utkarsha Rupwate is a member of the Maharashtra State Commission for Women. She is the general secretary of the Maharashtra Pradesh Congress Committee. A postgraduate from the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, she is also a permanent trustee of the Bahujan Shikshan Sangh in Ahmednagar.

Mahima Singh is a practising advocate at the Supreme Court, the convenor of the media department of the All India Congress Committee and a national media panellist for the Congress party. Educated at the Film and