Sridhar Radhakrishnan is an engineer by profession. He has taught in various institutions for eight years. He resigned from government service in 1997 and has since been actively involved in environmental health and justice. He is on the steering committee of the Alliance for Sustainable and Holistic Agriculture (ASHA Kisan Swaraj); is a director in the Thirunelly Agri Producer Company (TAPCo), a farmer-producer organization based in Wayanad, Kerala; the deputy national coordinator of the Save Our Rice Campaign; and the convener of a movement in India called the Coalition for a GM-Free India. He has authored two books related to the environment and resource use, and co-authored A Green Print for Sustainable Kerala: Lessons for Existence.

Nikhil Dey is a social activist and a founding member of the Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan (MKSS), a workers' and peasants' empowerment organization. The Rajasthan-based MKSS has helped lead successful campaigns for the landmark Indian legislation for the Right to Information and the Right to Work. He is involved with Jan Sarokar, a network of Indian social movements, and was a member of the steering committee of the Open Government Partnership from 2011 to 2014.

Medha Patkar is a social activist and reformer. She is the founder-member of the Narmada Bachao Andolan and the National Alliance of People's Movements. An alumnus of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, she has received several awards for her work in the areas of socio-economic justice, equity and political justice, among others. She contested the Lok Sabha election from Mumbai North East constituency in 2014.

Guddi S.L. is the managing editor of the Janta Weekly and a committee member of the Yusuf Meherally Centre. She has been associated with the National Alliance for People's Movements for the past eighteen years. A social activist, she worked at the National Service Scheme. Educated at the University of Mumbai, she is associated with numerous people's movements.