LEAK REVELATIONS

Snowden copied documents onto flash drives and turned over approximately 50,000 documents into the hands of journalists. NSA Deputy Director Richard Ledgett said on the CBS news program 60 Minutes the number was approximately 1.7 million.[1] Snowden says he may have "touched" that many documents, but he actually took far less. During the following months, dozens and then hundreds of leaked documents found their way into news stories. But it was the first three leaks that took the world by storm.

Verizon

The first article about Snowden's NSA documents reveals that, beginning in April 2013, the NSA collected phone metadata, call location, duration, and phone numbers of caller and receiver from millions of American customers of the giant telecom company Verizon. The NSA required Verizon to release information on all US and international phone calls in its
