" The first Project that I was given on the film was the 'Bucky container,'" Paul Ozzimo says."The design was very much inspired by airline shipping containers, which are essentially rectangular shapes with the corners cut off to accommodate the curvature of an aircraft body. It also needed to feel very strong, so I wrapped it in a thick roll cage. Inside, Bucky is held in place by some hefty clamps that deliver a nice electrical charge to keeP h. still. The idea was to make those restraints look as strong as Possible."
