Previous versions of the Iron Man armor featured a retractable faceplate, but for this film, the entire headpiece had to recede into the suit. "It was really a necessity," Dan Deleeuw says. "The confrontation between Tony and Steve at the airport is one of the bigger emotional beats of the film—they're making their final cases to each other about what belief system they should have."

Andy Park concept art.