Judianna Makovsky used Park's concept to tailor Wanda's costume, eventually arriving at the character's on-screen appearance. "The Russo brothers wanted to strip away some of the more 'super hero' elements of her look. She isn't that person yet," Makovsky says. "We put her in more real clothes with a fairly simple coat and pants. The jacket also opens in the back to create a really nice sense of movement when she's flying or when she's fighting."

Christian Cordella concept art.