

THE HOWLING COMMANDOS

A broad mix of characters, the Howling Commandos serve as Captain America's field team. Meinerding helped shape the squad's look, a challenging task as each member required unique and original design elements. Said Meinerding, "Designing Morita involved trying to figure out how to weave a high-tech looking radio throughout his costume so he could be the Howling Commandos communications officer. I ended up using a more modern top to a military radio as reference.

"Falsworth's design is probably the most layered because we were subtlety trying to work the Union Jack onto his chest by using the straps and webbing to hint at the comic character Union Jack. We did try and work in the more typical British military uniform with him, but definitely added some custom elements. "Dernier was a French Resistance fighter, and we decided to make him a bomb expert. We designed his costume and webbing to hold landmines and a few types of grenades.