

"The costumes represent a little more militant version of S.H.I.E.L.D.," Head of Visual Development Ryan Meinerding says. "Nick Fury is intended to look slightly fascist, like he might have gone too far in his attempts to protect the world."

Costume Illustrator Christian Cordella explains his work on Nick Fury's outfit: "Costume Designer Judianna Markovsky and I did so many different variations of colors, leather materials, seam patterns, position of pockets, until we found the right balance. It's subtle, but at the same time there is enough detail to become interesting. What is really important for this kind of a character is the silhouette. That determines the value of certain creations."

Christian Cordella concept illustration.

Executive Producer Louis D'Esposito describes Fury's look more succinctly: "Sam Jackson is the epitome of cool, so whatever he's doing–whatever role he's playing–you know he's going to be cool."