Legacy created two versions of the Winter Soldier's arm. "We made one from foam rubber with tracking markers on it for extreme action," Mahan says. "And then there were these arms made of urethane that were metalized and had less action mobility, but for certain shots looked reflective and really great."