

Meinerding: "As a longtime Cap fan, the other labor of love I had was to get his ears exposed. That's a Captain America thing to me—his classic look has his ears showing. In terms of getting the helmet close to his head and actually feeling more like Captain America even without the protruding wings, it was important that I try one last time to have his ears exposed."