

The interior of the house included an elaborately designed bathroom (left, below) that didn't make it to principal photography — an early morning scene that indicated the degree to which an "awakening" Jarvis set up the house and maintained order.

