

To give Iron Man a three-dimensional presence in theater lobbies, a standee was produced (right) with component parts (above) that could be put together into a semblance of the hero's armored form.

