Tony Bohorquez

STARK MANSION V2.1

Riva: "On the first movie we had the living room and we had the garage and we had a bedroom, and we were confined by the stages we were shooting on—we couldn't quite get it the right size. This time there was a beat sheet that said, 'There's a big fight in the house.' That's all it said. So, we tried to figure out, okay, where does the fight happen and where does it develop? We designed the entire house this time and proceeded to get it ready to be blown up and explode, to be torn about by these guys fighting."

Nathaniel West