

Riva: "I was looking at my iPhone one day and saw it; I said, 'Well what if the whole floor of the garage is glass?' And at the time we had a lot of interactive 3D stuff that's supposed to come from this giant display coming right out of the floor. So we thought, well then, you'd need some lights. So let's put some lights in. So I did a little sketch with lights all over the place and it looked pretty good. I showed it to Jon and we upgraded everything in the garage."

Latcham: "We built a new floor for Tony's workshop, complete with rows and rows of lights that could act as interactive sources for the holograms."

