

Meinerding: "The main design elements are really just to break it up into smaller pieces so it looks like it could fold in on itself, and do it in such a way that—when it's folding and unfolding—it doesn't have magical qualities. And once it comes together that it has enough sort of consistency and coherentness, it feels like an Iron Man suit."

George Hull