And here she came, down to the set in this early Black Widow costume. She was in the costume and her hair was pulled back in a ponytail and we're in the middle of shooting another scene, we have all these extras on set, everything's working against her—and she walked in and everyone's jaw dropped. I've never seen grips and electricians put together something so quickly cause they wanted to get her in front of the camera. It was a really cool moment on the set."
