[3] Partial exceptions include the Business Insider website which has run a series of articles by Michael Kelly, such as http://www.businessinsider.com/everything-we-know-about-snowden-leaks-2013-11 Two people who have really followed up this story are Catherine A Fitzpatrick in her 'Wired State' blog (see 3dblogger.typepad.com/wired_state) and John Schindler at 20comittee.com; I gratefully acknowledge my debt to both.

[4] When the ex-communist countries joined NATO, the alliance was so concerned about offending Russia that it initially decided not to make any plans to defend them. This changed after the war in Georgia in 2008, thanks to the Obama administration. I revealed the decision to draw up the plans in January 2010: see http://www.economist.com/node/15268095

[5] To be published by Bloomsbury in 2015.

[6] http://www.lawfareblog.com contains excellent analysis of these issues, especially by Benjamin Wittes. See also http://www.nytimes.com/2014/01/18/us/politics/obama-nsa.html

[7] http://www.langerresearch.com/uploads/1155a5NSAandSnowden.pdf. Another poll of young Americans shows a quarter backing Snowden, a quarter condemning him, and fully a half undecided: http://www.economist.com/news/united-states/21592654-revelations-about-cyber-espionage-dismay-barack-obamas-most-loyal-fans-snooper-blooper

[8] See for example http://www.dni.gov/files/documents/1118/CLEANEDPRTT%202.pdf

[9] http://www.npr.org/blogs/thetwo-way/2014/01/09/261079074/nsa-says-it-would-welcome-public-advocate-at-fisa-court

[10] 'Snowden—myths and misapprehensions' by Nigel Inkster, IISS, 15 November 2013, http://www.iiss.org/en/politics%20and%20strategy/blogsections/2013-98d0/november-47b6/snowden-9dd1

[11] See http://www.lawfareblog.com/2014/01/a-game-changing-ruling-in-the-no-fly-list-case.

It is worth noting that the plaintiff, a foreigner contesting the Department of Homeland Security's decision to put her on a no-fly list, launched her lawsuit well before the Snowden revelations, and seems to be heading for vindication.

[12] The claim was first made in his video interview on June 10th, available at: http://www.theguardian.com/world/video/2013/jun/09/nsa-whistleblower-edward-snowden-interview-video and elaborated here: http://www.theguardian.com/world/2013/jul/31/nsa-top-secret-program-online-data

[13] 'Top-Secret Document Reveals NSA Spied on Porn Habits as Part of Plan to Discredit "Radicalizers"', http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/11/26/nsa-porn-muslims_n_4346128.html

[14] 'In 2009, NSA Said it Had a "Present Example" of Abuse Similar to Project Minaret', http://www.emptywheel.net/2013/11/27/in-2009-nsa-said-it-had-a-present-example-of-abuse-similar-to-project-minaret

[15] A collection of documents on these and other past intelligence abuses can be found at http://www.maryferrell.org/mffweb/archive/docset/getList.do?docSetId=1014

[16] Inkster, see n10 above

[17] http://xark.typepad.com/my_weblog/2014/01/if-the-nsa-freaks-you-out-you-still-use-google-you-are-an-idiot.html