denied any knowledge: Larry Page and David Drummond, 'Official Google Blog', June 7, 2013, http://googleblog.blogspot.de/2013/06/what.html

[54] http://www.zdnet.com/the-real-story-in-the-nsa-scandal-is-the-collapse-of-journalism-7000016570; http://news.cnet.com/8301-13578_3-57588337-38/no-evidence-of-nsas-direct-access-to-tech-companies

[55] https://blogs.technet.com/b/microsoft_blog/archive/2013/12/04/protecting-customer-data-from-government-snooping.aspx

[56] http://blogs.telegraph.co.uk/news/brendanoneill2/100252627/whats-the-difference-between-a-whistleblower-and-a-mad-conspiracy-theorist

[57] 'When Thinking Styles Collide: Silicon Valley, Congress and C.P. Snow's Two Cultures', http://3dblogger.typepad.com/wired_state/2012/06/when-thinking-styles-collide-silicon-valley-congress-and-cp-snows-two-cultures.html. See also the follow-up post 'Who can be trusted', http://3dblogger.typepad.com/wired_state/2013/12/who-can-be-trusted-on-nsa-and-encryption.html

[58] https://github.com/poppingtonic/greenwald-30c3-keynote/blob/master/transcript/transcript.md

[59] Inkster, see n10, above

[60] Hamburg speech: https://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=xEJIR0-KJu0

[61] This training slide exemplifies the law-governed approach, showing exactly what NSA officials should do if and when they come across Americans' data: http://apps.washingtonpost.com/g/page/national/whats-a-violation/391

[62] http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/fact-checker/post/james-clappers-least-untruthful-statement-to-the-senate/2013/06/11/e50677a8-d2d8-11e2-a73e-826d299ff459_blog.html

[63] http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2013/sep/12/us-spy-congress-rein-in-nsa-domestic-snooping/?page=all

[64] He is excoriated here by the former British MP Louise Mensch: http://unfashionista.com/2013/12/04/has-alan-rusbridger-exposed-names-of-thousands-of-gchq-personnel

[65] In John le Carré's novel The Russia House the plot revolves around a brilliant and successful attempt to make British intelligence hand over its crown jewels: the list of what it most wants to know about Russia.

[66] This caustic piece in the National Interest, by former CIA officer David Gioe, outlines well the damage to American intelligence's reputation—and effectiveness: http://nationalinterest.org/article/tinker-tailor-leaker-spy-the-future-costs-mass-leaks-9644?page=show

[67] http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/08/19/glenn-greenwald-uk-secrets-britain-detains-partner_n_3779667.html. Greenwald said later that his remarks, in Portuguese, were not meant to be construed this way. But he has given little reason to doubt the sentiment.

[68] Paul Pilar has argued this well in the National Interest: http://nationalinterest.org/print/blog/paul-pillar/leaks-irresponsible-press-9633