* I’m making use here of the relational interpretation of quantum mechanics, which is the one I myself find least implausible. The observations that follow, in particular the loss of a classic spacetime satisfying Einstein’s equations, remain valid in every other interpretation that I know of.