

The universe began as a small ball and then exploded to its present cosmic dimensions. This is our current image of the universe, on the grandest scale that we know.

Is there anything else? Was there something before? Perhaps, yes. I’ll talk about it after a couple of lessons. Do other similar universes exist, or different ones? We do not know.